Benaulim Beach

"Off The Calmer"

One of South Goa's premium beaches, the Benaulim Beach has still gone unnoticed at least by domestic tourists who tend to flock to North Goa's Calangute Beach. Much quieter than most other beaches, Benaulim is well known for its fishing activity, gleaming white sands, deep blue waters, and picturesque surroundings. When night falls, this beach is transformed into a sort of fairyland with many of the sea-facing eateries lighting up in anticipation of tourists looking for some nocturnal entertainment, local cuisines, and well-crafted drinks. During the peak season, one can indulge in boat rides, water sports, and paragliding.

Grand Island

"Tropical Paradise"

Located in the middle of the Arabian Sea, the Grand Island is a popular tourist destination in Goa. Owing to its location, this tiny island is a great spot for water sports and activities like scuba diving, snorkeling, jet skiing, fishing etc. The island is also a fabulous location for dolphin spotting. Various tour companies offer fun day trips to and around the island. So the next time you're in Goa, be sure to jump aboard a boat and set sail to this picturesque tropical paradise.

Candolim Beach

"Where All The Fun Is"

Set along the majestic coastline of North Goa, the Candolim Beach offers much respite to those looking for a break from the touristy aggression of the more popular Calangute Beach. Like other beaches, this one too offers much tranquil, sea facing shacks and water sports like parasailing. However what sets it apart from the others is its coastline which is dominated by the colossal outline of the River Princess ship which ran around here in 2001 during a cyclonic storm. Although environmental hazards exist because of the ships continued presence, one cannot deny that this beach is easily one of the most photographed and it never fails to evoke fascination and awe in every visitor.

Calangute Beach

"Queen Of The Beaches"

Set against the backdrop of the deep blue Arabian Sea, Calangute Beach is an evergreen favorite with tourists and locals alike. Nicknamed the 'Queen Of The Beaches', this beach was once a haven for the flower children of the 1960's. However, as time passed, an aggressive brand of tourism took over, and today it has been invaded by throngs of local tourists who come here for a dip in the sea, to play football, stroll along the sands or to enjoy the warm home-cooked meals at the many restaurants along the shores of Calangute. A number of accommodations varying from very expensive to moderate lie in and around the area. Attractions like the St. Alex Church are located very close to the beach.

Baga Beach

"The Fun Lies Here"

Continuing along the same stretch as the Calangute Beach, Baga Beach is renowned for its pulsating nightlife and beach shacks. Surrounded by palm trees and rocky cliffs, the beach is well known for its diligent fishermen who come here at dawn to cast their nets into the ocean. Besides this quaint attraction, Baga also has diverse options for dining and nightlife with many restaurants, pubs, and clubs located very close to the shore. Because of its popularity, Baga Beach has a wide range of accommodation choices. During the tourist season, water sports like speed boating, banana boating, and para-sailing are the order of the day.
